

Statement from the Chicago Police Department

November 27, 2015

The Chicago Police Department is committed to protecting first amendment rights and our officers uphold that commitment with honor. The vast majority of the individuals who have chosen to exercise their first amendment rights recently have done so peacefully.

We encourage visitors to Chicago to enjoy the city and the many holiday festivities and traditions we have to offer.

The Chicago Police Department will have officers available throughout the city to ensure public safety, address traffic considerations and support any peaceful demonstrations.
